

European Psychologist

2017

Official Organ of the EFPA and supported by other organizations of psychology in Europe

The European Psychologist is a multidisciplinary journal that serves as the voice of psychology in Europe, seeking to integrate across all specializations in psychology and to provide a general platform for communication and cooperation among psychologists throughout Europe and worldwide. The journal accepts two kinds of contributions:

1. Original Articles and Reviews: Integrative articles and reviews constitute the core material published in the journal. These state-of-the-art papers cover research trends and developments within psychology, with possible reference to European perceptions or fields of specialization. Empirical articles will be considered only in rare circumstances when they present findings from major multinational, multidisciplinary or longitudinal studies, or present results with markedly wide relevance.

2. EFPA News and Views are a central source of information on important legal, regulatory, ethical, and administrative matters of interest to members of the European Federation of Psychologists' Associations (EFPA) and other psychologists working throughout Europe. Such items include: News, reports from congresses or EFPA task forces and member country organizations, policy statements, keynote and award addresses, archival or historical documents with relevance for all European psychologists, and calendars of forthcoming meetings.

Impact factor of 3.372 for 2015!
