

European Journal of

Psychological Assessment

2017

The EJPA is the official organ of the European Association of Psychological Assessment (EAPA).

The main purpose of EJPA is to present seminal information on both theoretical and applied developments in the field of psychological assessment. Articles reporting the construction of new measures or the advancement of existing measures are given priority. The journal is directed to practitioners as well as to academicians: The conviction of its editors is that the discipline of psychological assessment should, necessarily and firmly, be attached to the roots of psychological science, while going deeply into all the consequences of its applied, practice-oriented development.

Psychological assessment is experiencing a period of renewal and expansion, attracting more and more attention from both academic and applied psychology.

EJPA provides a meeting point for this movement, contributing to the scientific development of psychological assessment and to communication between professionals and researchers in Europe and worldwide.

Impact factor of 1.969 for 2015!
